

Shabbat Shalom!

We conducted the service this evening as a live Zoom meeting, and those who joined could see and speak to each other. It was LOVELY.

The service was also recorded, and I am posting the links here for the recordings with both audio only and video with audio.

Many thanks to Rich Katz for his technical assistance.

This week, the service is approximately 58 minutes total, but the recording may be longer with the pre-service and post-service conversations included

As I said tonight, including the words from the Siddur in the video makes it seem too small to read, so we did not do that, but we are working on it, and we also are arranging that if you want to pick up a copy of the siddur and sign it out for use, we can arrange that. Otherwise, you can access the words in our Siddur (prayer book) via this link to a flip book online version of the Mishkan T'fillah for Shabbat siddur.

At Temple Israel the building remains closed for events until it is deemed safe to open again, so we will continue to share virtual Shabbat services.

If you have any comments, criticisms, or suggestions about this new format for services, please let me know, or share your thoughts with Josh Barrett, Mary Rich Maloy, or other board members. Please know that we are working hard to try to offer meaningful and uplifting services and events, and your input is valued, and most helpful in allowing us to craft them.

More, I would love to hear from you, if you are available to chat for a few minutes - either on the phone calls, zoom meetings, or by phone, text, or email to just check in and let me know how you are doing.

As before, I will send a separate email with links and details about the events in the coming week. Watch for the email to get access information.

Wishing you a Shabbat shalom, and hoping to see you online soon!
